INTRODUCTION

The modern bus and coach industry plays a major role in the Canadian economy and is an exciting place in which to work and build a career. Moving millions of people daily, the industry looks forward to continued growth. New technology is opening up many new developments, and modern techniques have created a vibrant, responsive industry. The industry is working hard to provide new and better services for all its customers, this in turn means that a wide variety of skills is needed to deliver the highest level of customer care to the public.

The Motor Carrier Passenger Council of Canada was established in January 1999 in partnership with Human Resources Development Canada (HRDC) to address human resource issues of value to the motor carrier passenger industry.

The sector comprises:

Urban transit systems engaged in the public transportation of passengers in urban areas;

Intercity bus lines providing scheduled inter-urban and rural passenger transportation;

Tour and charter bus services using motor coaches to transport groups and tourists;

School bus transportation providers using traditional yellow buses to transport students to and from school;

Accessibility services transporting persons with special needs.

The Council represents the interests of more than 78,000 employees across Canada, and is mandated to orchestrate the co-operation of management, unions, associations and government to improve human resource standards, performance and recognition for the industry.

This Occupational Standard has been developed by industry professionals and describes the skills, knowledge and abilities required to perform his or her duties as a Professional Bus Operator. Occupational standards can be used for a variety of purposes, and may form the basis for training, curriculum development, accreditation of training programs, recruitment, performance improvement, career development and the certification of practitioners.

GUIDE TO THE OCCUPATIONAL STANDARD

THE OCCUPATIONAL STANDARD

WHAT ARE STANDARDS?

Standards describe the tasks and sub-tasks to be performed in an occupation. They include statements outlining the performance, knowledge and abilities required for competency in an occupation.

Standards are relevant to individuals in the bus and coach industry because they

- cover areas of work involved
- can be undertaken “on the job”
- recognize expertise and experience
- cover new skills and knowledge
- are developed by the industry itself

BENEFITS OF STANDARDS

Industry Professionals

- offer a foundation for career development
- provide motivation to learn and develop new and existing skills
- offer greater job satisfaction through improved personal achievement
- enhance public and professional image

Employers and Owners

- provide guidance for recruitment, training and development of staff
- provide means of increasing competitiveness and profitability
- identify key tasks and roles
- ensure that employee skills are effectively utilized
- help create a competent, flexible and motivated workforce
- help to promote the industry as a viable career choice for new entrants

Educators

- provide the basis for curriculum and training development
- identify areas where expertise is required

Community

- provide a national framework related to identified needs for occupational skills, knowledge and abilities
- provide nationally recognized, industry-driven benchmarks of best performance
- provide the means for making better use of national resources

RELATIONSHIP TO CERTIFICATION

Standards provide the basis for the development of certification criteria for a system of professional recognition.

DEVELOPMENT OF THE OCCUPATIONAL STANDARD

This Occupational Standard was developed and validated by people with extensive knowledge and experience in bus operations.

In September 1999 extensive research was conducted into existing provincial and international standards.

In November 1999 an Occupational Analysis Workshop was conducted in Ottawa, Ontario with 14 industry practitioners mostly from Eastern Canada.

In February 2000 a Validation Workshop was conducted in Vancouver, British Columbia with 13 industry practitioner mostly from Western Canada.

In April 2000 the final draft document was mailed to 116 individuals, industry organizations and bus operating organizations for their comments and input. All respondents endorsed the document, some requested minor changes or additions which were incorporated into this document.

In December 2003 a revision workshop was conducted in Vancouver, B.C. with 26 industrial practitioners and 5 invited Educational Institution representatives from across Canada.

In September 2006 a revision workshop was conducted in Toronto, Ontario with 12 industry practitioners from across Canada.

In November 2009 a revision workshop was conducted in Toronto, Ontario with 15 industry practitioners from across Canada.

In November 2012 a revision workshop was conducted in Montréal, Québec with 13 industry practitioners from across Canada.

STRUCTURE OF THE STANDARD

To facilitate the understanding of the nature of the occupation, the work performed is divided into the following divisions:

BLOCK	Block is the largest division within the analysis, and reflects a distinct operation relevant to the occupation
TASK	Task is a distinct, observable, measurable, activity, which, combined with others, makes up the logical and necessary steps the practitioner is required to perform to complete a specific assignment within a block.
CONTEXT STATEMENT	Content Statement defines the parameters of the task.
SUB-TASK	Sub-Task is the smallest division into which it is practical to subdivide any work activity, and, combined with others, fully describes all duties constituting a task.
SUPPORTING KNOWLEDGE AND ABILITIES	Supporting Knowledge and Abilities are the elements of skill and knowledge an individual must acquire to adequately perform the sub-task.

LAYOUT OF THE STANDARD

This Occupational Standard is divided into two sections:

SECTION 1	Blocks A – E are common to all Professional Bus Operators
SECTION 2	Blocks F – J applies to specific segments of the industry. It should be noted that many Professional Bus Operators work in two or more of these specialities.

SCOPE OF THE PROFESSIONAL BUS OPERATOR

PROFESSIONAL BUS OPERATORS

The title “Professional Bus Operator” defines a person, who, because of his or her knowledge, training and abilities, is capable of operating a motor vehicle for hire, designed to carry passengers. Professional Bus Operators typically work in one or more of five major transportation areas: urban, intercity, school, tour/charter, and accessible services.

Professional Bus Operators are responsible for the safe operation of their vehicles at all times including diverse weather and traffic conditions, and must follow schedule guidelines sometimes under difficult circumstances. Bus Operators usually work alone, without direct supervision, which necessitates a great deal of individual autonomy and responsibility.

Customer relations are a large part of the Professional Bus Operator’s daily duties. Today’s bus passengers expect a high level of quality customer service from the Professional Bus Operator. To ensure the continued growth of the industry, Professional Bus Operators must be able to communicate effectively with all passengers and respond to their needs.

Professional Bus Operators must constantly monitor their passengers and other drivers. They must exercise a great deal of tact and diplomacy when dealing with difficult passengers and disrespect from other drivers. Professional Bus Operators must be alert and manage their personal well being as they can drive long hours with minimum breaks, operate during peak periods with split shifts and must cope with adverse weather, construction and traffic conditions.

Professional Bus Operators must be aware of the driver-related mechanical, electrical, and computerized systems associated with different types of buses, which, with the advent of modern technology, are becoming more complex. Technology also plays an increasing role in the communications and scheduling of buses. Most Professional Bus Operators now maintain electronic communications with their dispatcher, and some buses are equipped with passenger-monitoring video systems, automatic vehicle-location systems, global positioning, and computerized information systems. This increasingly sophisticated face of public transportation means that a wide variety of skills are required, including business, technical, and social skills. Professional Bus Operators must participate in an on-going process of acquiring new skills and knowledge.

Although not an Occupational Standard, it is important that the Professional Bus Operator maintain a healthy lifestyle and constantly self-monitor stress levels. There will be times when job-related or personal trauma can adversely affect performance. Knowledge of company and community support systems is essential to ensure public and personal safety is not compromised during job performance.

URBAN BUS OPERATORS

Urban Bus Operators travel prescribed routes in towns, cities and the suburbs picking up passengers at designated stops according to defined schedules. Often they must deal with heavy traffic and congested streets while collecting fares, issuing transfers and validating passes. Many urban buses now have wheelchair/scooter accessible features, which may require the bus operator to assist the passenger on and off the bus by operating ramps or lifts and securing the wheelchair, scooter, and passenger. Some urban busses now also have bicycle racks for storing passenger's cycles. Urban Bus Operators meet a wide variety of urban passengers which many report makes the job interesting. Operating during peak periods can also result in lengthy split shifts and heavy passenger loads.

INTERCITY BUS OPERATORS

Intercity Bus Operators typically pick up passengers at inner-city bus terminals and drive them directly to bus terminals in other cities. However, some Intercity Bus Operators make frequent stops to pick up and drop off passengers and parcels at local agencies. Parcel pick-up and delivery is an important component of the Intercity Bus Operator's work, which may entail some heavy lifting and maintaining careful records. They drive in remote areas of the country without reliable radio or cellular telephone communications to request assistance in an emergency. They face long hours of highway driving, often at night, and must be sensitive to the comfort and needs of long-distance passengers.

SCHOOL BUS OPERATORS

School Bus Operators drive students to and from school, and to and from intramural activities, stopping and starting in both rural and urban areas. These operators have the additional safety and security responsibility associated with carrying students, i.e. maintaining order, and ensuring safe stopping and starting, often on busy highways and country roads. In most areas they are also responsible for controlling traffic through the use of flashing lights. Many School Buses now have wheelchair accessible features, which require the Bus Operator to assist the passenger on and off the bus and secure wheelchairs/scooters. First-Aid and CPR certification is also required in some jurisdictions. Some bus operators are now required to be aware of the special and medical needs of students; such as, autism and allergic reactions.

TOUR AND CHARTER BUS OPERATORS

Tour and Charter Bus Operators convey passengers from point to point for specific purposes, such as sightseeing tours, transporting passengers from their hotel to the airport or rail station, or transporting groups, i.e. sports teams or the elderly. Tour and Charter Bus Operators often have the additional responsibility of acting as Tour Guides, and, as such, they must be knowledgeable of the sights and places of interest. Some tours may last up to 30 days, which means the Tour Bus Operator must be mindful of the needs of their passengers over extended long periods of time. Although Tour Bus Operators spend a great deal of time away from home, most report that this is compensated for by seeing new sights and meeting new people. Tour and Charter Operators must be aware of cross-border rules and restrictions and must check passengers' documentation prior to departure.

ACCESSIBLE SERVICES BUS OPERATORS

Accessible Services Bus Operators transport passengers using vehicles specially equipped to accommodate wheelchairs, scooters, and people with special needs. They provide a door-to-door service assisting passengers from and to their doors and on and off the bus. Accessible Services Bus Operators must have a high level of sensitivity to the needs of their passengers, and many are required to have First Aid and CPR certification.
